

To try to be right I learn, to become right
we learn.

Therefore, I should publish what I've learnt for others to learn to be right. All is for the collective and being right. To ensure that we can learn, there should be a common language in the collective and thus, I will publish what I learn in English text. For the encyclopaedia to be right, it would be helpful if people put what they and others know.

Encyclopaedia of Knowledge:

According to Manning Bartlett: Burma has been the name for the country of Myanmar until 1989. The name change is not recognised by the United States government due to its lack of recognition for Burma's military government. Thus, the CIA World Factbook refers to the country as Burma. However, the United Nations recognise the 1989 name change.

According to me: